MAN WITH ORCHESTRA MUSIC SCORES

BY: DON MILLER (OBOE)

Several weeks ago, I was attending a reception in a colourful part of town. As I was waiting to enter, I met a gentleman who owned a hundred or so complete classical music scores which he wished to sell. "I have twenty that are full orchestra pieces; the remainder comprise of complete works for ensembles, sonatas and concertos."

I was interested, so as I leaned forward to see past a partition that was partly separating us, I made an offer, "Would you take a hundred dollars for the works?"

"I couldn't take any less than eight hundred," he retorted, "the orchestra pieces by Mozart, Brahms and Haydn are worth at least five to six hundred each and are in excellent condition."

This is too good to pass up I thought, so I left to get the funds quickly as I was so excited! However, in so anxiously leaving to get the money, I was remiss in telling him I would buy his collection and would be back soon. Later when I returned with the money, I found everyone had entered the reception and the gentleman with the music scores was no longer around. As I proceeded to join the reception, and to find the man with the music, I woke up – it had all been a DREAM!
